Hildegard Volkward - New Name & New Device

Or, a dragon-headed drakkar prow and in sinister canton a mullet of five greater and five lesser points sable

Submitter desires a feminine name.
Culture (German, 12th-13th century) most important.

Hildegard: Bahlow, s.n. Hildegard references the popularity of the name after Hildegard v. Bingen circa 1150, and gives a dated metronymic of Hildegardis (with a Latin ending) in 1294.

Hildegard - Withycombe (s.n. Hildegard, p. 153) cites St. Hildegard, Abbess of Bingen (died 1004) which isn't support of Hildegard in German. Remember that Withycombe is not considered reliable for non-English names. Bahlow/Gentry (s.n. Hildegard, p. 224) states "Hildegard was a noble fem.n. in the Middle Ages (Charlemagne's second wife was called H., also Saint H. of Bingen around 1150).

<Volkward> - found in Bahlow pg. 527

Headwords - Volkwarth, Volquardt

Person - Volkward Tutike, Hamburg, 1268

Volkward: Bahlow, s.n. Volkmuth (p. 524, and neither Volkwarth nor Volquardt are headwords) gives a Volkward Tutike in record, 1268. Unmarked/unmodified masculine names appear frequently as patronymic surnames of German women, so this construction follows an attested pattern.

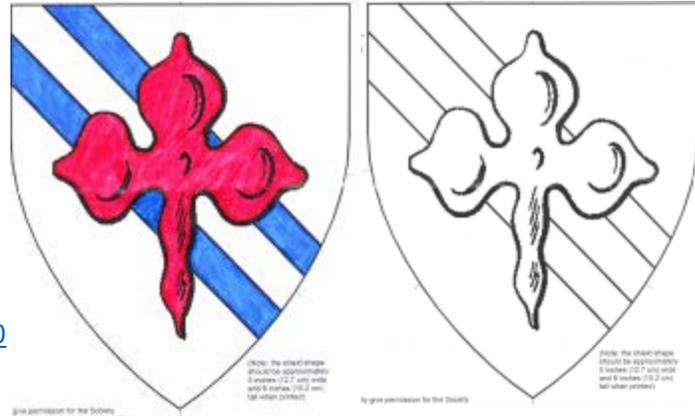

Volkward - Bahlow/Gentry (s.n. Volkwarth, Volquardt, p. 527) notes that the "names ending in -ward are very old North Sea Germanic-Fris." and does include "Volkward Tutike, Hbg. 1268".

The prow should be centered - AN?

John Radclyff - New Device

Maelgwyn Dda - New Badge

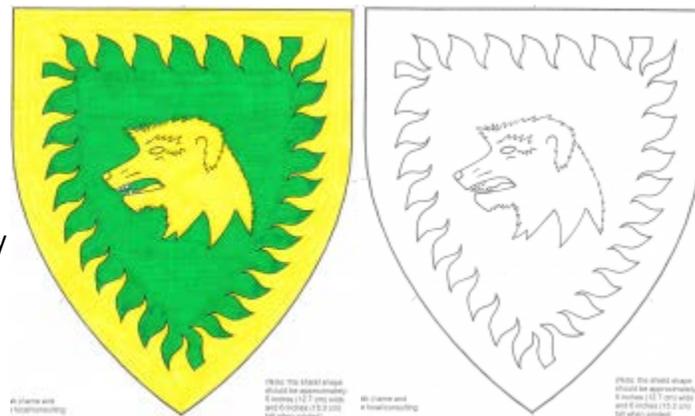

Vert, a braided cord palewise Or throughout.

Maelgwyn Dda - New Blazon Change

Vert, a wolfhound's head erased, within a border rayonny Or.

the submitter always intended the primary charge to be a "wolfhound", but his original submission was apparently reblazoned (by Kingdom, he said) as a "wolf".

He has a strong preference for "wolfhound" over "wolf" ("...the wolfhound, which hunts the wolf"). If a reblazon is sufficient, that's all he wants. If a device change is required, the paperwork is here for it.

The most important thing to the submitter is that he have a wolfhound's head in the blazon. If it is determined that his new drawing is registered to get that, then he wishes to release the old drawing.

Muirenn ingen Chernaig - New Name & New Device

Sable, a schnecke issuant from base reversed maintaining on the outer swirl three schnecks and in chief three escallops inverted argent

Submitter desires a feminine name.
No major changes.

Takeyama Daitarou - New Name & New Device

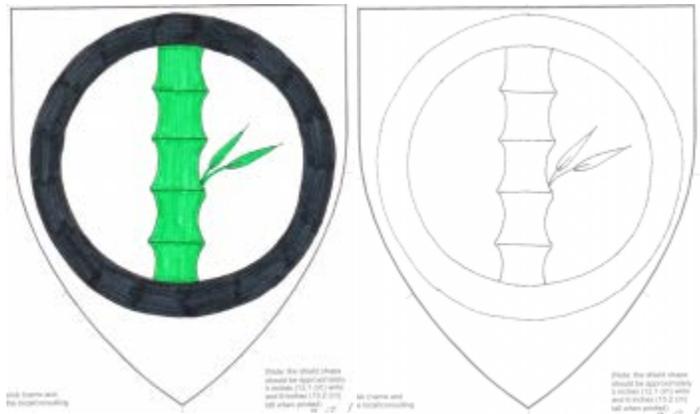

Argent, a bamboo stalk vert within and conjoined to an annulet sable

No major changes.

Client requests authenticity for post 1000 AD Japan.

Culture most important.

Meaning most important.

<Take> : primarily 1st element meaning

bamboo Name Construction in Medieval Japan by Solveig Thronardottir, page 160

(http://potboilerpress.com/index.php?main_page=product_info&products_id=25 -- no photocopies included with submission)

<Yama> : seen as 1st or 2nd element meaning mountain (same source, p. 143)

<Dai> : "common first element in men's zokumyō" meaning big Online Japanese miscellany "Japanese Names" by Anthony J. Bryant (<http://www.sengokudaimyo.com/miscellany/miscellany.html>)

<Tarou> : "Principle parts in men's zokumyō" meaning first son (Bryant)

<Takeyama> = surname

<Daitarou> = Yobina (see precedent set by name "Akechi Daitarou Katsuhiko")

Name Comments:

Take is found in NCMJ under Plants/Bamboo p. 160 as an element in surnames with examples Takenaka dated to 1568 and Takexaki dated to 1332.

Yama is found in MCMJ under Works of Nature/Mountain p. 143 where is found as an element in surnames. Examples that include plants as the first element: Kuwayama 1568 (kuwa = mulberry bush) and Sakurayama 1600 (sakura = cherry). As bamboo can grow on mountains (<http://botanyboy.org/moso-japans-giant-bamboo-phyllostachys-edulis/>), it seems that Takeyama would be an appropriate combination.

Documentation for Daitarou (big first son) was provided on East's 11/30/2010 Lol in the submission for Akechi Daitarou Katsuhiko (<http://oscar.sca.org/index.php?action=145&id=15375>). When registering the name on the Feb. 2011 LoAR Pelican noted

With regards to the authenticity request it should be noted as Daitarou is a constructed yobina we can't know that it is authentic but given that it is found in the 17th C it may be authentic for our period. The most common pattern of names in our period would be <family name> + <yobina> + <nanori>. The pattern <family name> + <nanori> is also found though it is more typical for members of the kuge and buke classes (NCMJ, "Designing a Japanese Name", p. 65). I'm not sure that <family name> + <yobina> meets his authenticity request but I believe it is registrable.

Bendy sable and argent

Submitted through the Barony of Namron at Gulf Wars.

Consulting herald Genevieve d'Estelle.

This badge has been returned, as it conflicts with:

Conflict with William de Greyhope (device, Aug 2006, Middle), Bendy ermine and sable. This is not clear under SENA A5F2 (Substantial Change of Tincture) as both have sable. There is a single DC for changing the tincture of half the field.

Conflict with Khalil ibn Abd'l-Wahid al-Katib (device, Aug 2014, Calontir), Bendy wavy argent and sable. There's a single DC for changing from a wavy to a plain line of division under SENA A5G1c.

Conflict with Sofonisba Alberti (device, Dec 1997, West), Bendy and per pale sable and argent. There's a single DC for removing the per pale line. This is equivalent to the example in SENA A5G1b (Change of Direction of Partition Lines) "For example, Barry wavy azure and argent is a DC from Per pale and barry wavy azure and argent."
